Using her known and proven 4-part method, 'The 4C's Blueprint™', Teresha has shown hundreds of women over the years how to find a deeper understanding of themselves to set themselves up for relationship success.

She truly believes that every woman deserves to successfully experience love, connection, deep fulfilment and self-validation in every single one of their achievements.

Congratulations! The fact that you are reading this guide, already makes you someone on the winning side of achieving the fullness of love, life and relationships that you truly desire and deserve!

Whether or not your relationship is healthy or on shaky grounds or whether you are single or looking for love, it's important that you have a strong, loving relationship with yourself, particularly as this sets the bar for any other relationships (of all kinds) you have or will have in the future.

However, in our hectic lives, it can sometimes feel like there's so much going on. We've got our jobs, home life and lots of things on our 'to-do list' that we need to get done and sometimes it just doesn't feel like there's enough time in the day to do all of this, let alone to have any 'Me Time.'

Plus, if you're used to putting others first, it can feel hard to prioritise yourself, especially if you're a parent and not feel guilty about having 'Me Time.' However, it's important to take time for yourself, so you can enjoy the psychological and physical benefits.

"You can only
be the best for others, when you are at your best."

We've all heard the familiar instruction of airline flight attendants during their pre-flight instructions, "make sure to put the oxygen mask on yourself first before attempting to help someone else put on theirs." Why is this an important rule for ensuring survival?

Because if you run out of oxygen, you can't help anyone else with their oxygen mask. This is an important metaphor if you are running around taking care of everything and everyone else except yourself. If you're not taking care of yourself and having 'Me Time', you can experience burnout, stress, fatigue, reduced mental effectiveness, anxiety, frustration, inability to sleep and other health problems.

Are you experiencing any of those symptoms?

It's time to let go of the guilt and the excuses and put your oxygen mask on first, by rewarding yourself with 'Me Time,' so you feel refreshed, happier and maintain a good sense of self.

When you focus on an activity just for you, stress levels go down and you have time to recharge the batteries.

Fit this all important 'Me Time' into your life by having a little structure in your week, so you can dedicate time for you daily, even if you start with 10 minutes. On top of daily activities, you might have larger periods of 'Me Time' of half an hour a week, a day or a few days of having a moment for you.

Your goal is to sit back at the end of the week and say "I've spent this time doing this for me, this time doing that for me... ooh yeah I've had some quality Me Time!"

So what is 'Me Time?'

Well, it means different things to different people. 'Me Time' is anything that lights you up or fascinates you. It could be going for a walk, a trip to the movies, a night out with friends, having a massage, volunteering, anything you enjoy. It's a chance to lose yourself in what you're doing and celebrate yourself.

Look to structure in 'Me Time' daily. The time spent in 'Me Time' can vary depending upon the activity and your schedule. You may also choose to switch the days from week to week for each activity. The important thing to remember is that whilst you can be flexible with your plan, it is vital to be consistent and spend quality time on you daily.

If you're unsure where to start, this guide will provide you with some ideas.

Play around with the ideas, tear them apart, mix them up... the key is to spend time following the passions that stir your soul and give you the 'Me Time' you're worthy of!

"IF WE KEEP GOING WE NEVER HAVE A CHANCE
TO STOP AND APPRECIATE
WHAT WE'VE GOT, AND ASK WHAT DO I NEED FOR ME RIGHT NOW?"

7 Day 'Me Time' Plan

Day 1: Purification (Cleansing)

Dedicate the whole day to the purification of your body and mind. Use the day to cleanse, reflect and renew. This is a day of strengthening the power of your mind, to listen to that intuitive inner voice and connect to your inner being. Consider:

Eating food that is fulfilling not depriving. Oils, fibre and juices are good

Using mind-body techniques, such as meditation, breathing, yoga etc. to free the mind and relax you

Enjoying the natural world. Can you spend time in nature or if you have plants or a garden, can you tend to them?

Unplugging. Can you have a day without technology? A day of not checking emails or social media, putting away the phone, not watching TV or listening to music? Can you go completely off the grid? It might not be easy in the beginning and you may feel an initial anxiety, but if you do it every week, it will become more comfortable. And to put a positive spin on it, maybe it will make you appreciate the value of those things in your life?

Day 2: Life Plan

MAKE IT HAPPEN

Take time today to round up all that has happened during the week and to celebrate your success!

It's also a great opportunity to remind yourself of your relationship goals, dreams and desires.

Are you still clear on the vision of what you desire? If your goals, dreams and desires have changed or you have new ones, update them, making sure that are you're clear on the vision, you're holding the intention of attracting it and remembering to have the grateful faith that you now have it

Have you taken inspired action?

Have you made any progress towards/seen any opportunities for achieving your goals, dreams and desires?

Have you achieved any goals, dreams and desires?

Have you noticed any signs and synchronicities?

What acts of kindness have you given to others, received from others and given to yourself?

7 Day 'Me Time' Plan

Day 3: Get In Touch With Your Body

Today, put real loving time into taking care of your body.

Take this opportunity to explore and remind yourself what your body feels like. We're so used to directing life with our eyes and through what we see. Close your eyes and become curious: what does your body feel like? What's it like to be in your skin? Send love to the parts of your body that you're not so keen on and practise placing your hands on these areas and exploring what that area feels like without judgement.

Can you treat yourself to a long, relaxing bath? Whether you bathe to clean or to also relax, a bath can be a way of letting go and forgetting about the madness of that day or it can be a refreshing start to the day.

Could you pamper your skin? Massage lotion into your body slowly and gently. We often rush through this part of our post-shower/bath routine, but rather than thinking of it as an annoying or "I just do it" thing to do, make it enjoyable. Would deep-cleaning your pores be nice? Face masks can draw impurities out of your skin and stress out of your system and facials can also be a great way to deep clean your pores.

How about you look at your full body in the mirror and speak to yourself kindly? Can you find the words to compliment yourself on your legs and arms, your hair, your eyes, your mid-section... Go on a scavenger hunt to find your beauty. Remember to smile at yourself.

Could you tend to your nails?

It is said that our hair is our crowning glory... could you take care of your hair today? What about switching up your look with a new hairdo? Does your current hairstyle match your skin colouring perfectly, flatter the angles of your face and bring out the stunning colour of your eyes? Confidence, attitude and personality can all be said to be linked to a hairstyle.

Is it time to pay attention to your feet today? No matter what the season is, it's always important to keep your feet and toenails in tip-top condition. Fancy kicking off your shoes and walking barefoot? Connecting with the earth can help you remain grounded and calm.

Would a massage get rid of some of that tension? Touch is such a key aspect of our being and getting your muscles moved through massages can help you to feel light, flexible and at ease in your body.

Are there clothes you could wear today that make you feel amazing? How about dressing in an expressive or creative way that really shows who you are. The way you dress your body is a way to respect its authenticity. Say "I deserve to wear beautiful things because I love me!"

Could you rock your 'birthday suit' tonight? Sleeping naked can feel uncomfortable at first, but being in your most natural state is a wonderful sign of self-acceptance.

7 Day 'Me Time' Plan

Day 4: Staying Connected – Giving & Receiving

When's the last time you checked in on a family member or had a heart to heart chat with a friend?

When's the last time you gave someone a hug or got one in return?

Our busy lives can stop us keeping up relationships and reaching out to the people we care about. But connectedness is so important and good for your wellbeing.

How can you connect today?

'It's Good to Talk' - Who can you call today? Talking on a phone can be a great way to communicate and keeps the art of conversation going. There's a lot of depth to enjoy when talking to someone verbally about life.

If you don't have time to call, could you send them a text? See it as an instant message of happiness.

Could you catch up with people through your online social networks.

Can you wrap your arms around someone? Hugging is thought to be a powerful way of healing. If hugging is a step too far, how about trying a gentle touch, such as placing a hand on the person's back or shoulder? A soothing rubbing of the back, even for a second or two, is another great way to show affection.

Alert:

Ensure such physical touch is with people who you know will be okay with it — Please don't receive any claims of physical harassment!

-  Could you arrange a dinner? This is a great opportunity for meaningful interaction over some food!
-  Could you meet up with friends?
-  Is there a 'social meet up' you can attend?
-  Could you volunteer? Volunteering is a fun and easy way to explore your interests and passions and the benefits can be enormous to you, your family and your community.

7 Day 'Me Time' Plan

Day 5: Move Your Body

Today, do an exercise/physical activity that you enjoy. This might be attending a class or could you move your body in new ways? For example, if you are a runner, try belly dancing. If you are a yogi, try kickboxing. The main thing is to do this in a playful way, not as a perfectionist!

There are lots of fun activities to explore. A few you might wish to consider are:

Zumba. If you like to dance, Zumba could be for you. This aerobic workout blends choreographed footwork and body movements from salsa, merengue, flamenco and other dances to sculpt your body and burn fat.

Rope Jumping. Did you use a skipping/jump rope as a child? Do you remember how much fun it was? Well, as a child you probably wasn't thinking about the full-body cardiovascular workout you were getting!

Hula Hooping or "hooping" has re-emerged as a great cardio workout to slim your waist, hips, buttocks and thighs while toning your abdominals and lower back muscles.

Pole Dancing (ooh sensual!). You might feel a little out of your comfort zone walking around a brass pole for the first time and you'll probably have a good laugh whilst doing it, but pole dancing is thought to be a great way to get fit and boost your confidence.

Teaming up. If there's a sport you enjoyed as a child or have always thought about giving a go, such as netball or football, find a local league and join a team or get your friends and family together for regular pick-up games. You may be more motivated to exercise when you've got teammates waiting on you for practices and games. Your focus on the game and social aspects of playing on a team will make it feel less like exercise.

Day 6: Model Excellence

Today is a great opportunity to focus on a person who has a set standard of excellence you could model. Spend time thinking about:

Why they inspire you?

What is their vision for their life and how are they throwing their whole heart into making it a reality?

What actions have they taken in the past to achieve their goals and dreams and how are they continuing to do this?

What actions have they taken to be at the top of their game and what actions have made a real difference in their worlds?

Are they still holding on to their integrity?

How are they living their life consistent with their highest values and their deepest convictions?

Remember, you are not necessarily imitating their particular passion, goal and dream, as it's important to follow your own passions and to be original. This is about you setting it upon yourself to understand the steps they took to achieve their goals and dreams and creating your own version of it.

7 Day 'Me Time' Plan

Day 7: Creativity

In evolution theory, it is only when the species faces challenges that new improvements happen.

Can you spend time today giving the mind a challenging creativity workout session?

The brain is like a muscle and there are advantages of giving it a bit of tension. Just as you create tension when physically exercising to strengthen and build muscle, the brain benefits from tension to strengthen the mind, so you can evolve to become the best you can be.

Here are a few ideas:

Write Poetry

Write a poem about your day. You might even attempt to write it in the style of your favourite poet or following the structure of a classic poem, like a sonnet or haiku. Writing with a clear structure in mind pushes you to find the ideal word or phrase to fit the restraints of the style you have chosen, which can improve your overall writing ability.

Read

Read a book or article unrelated to your career or business or the books you normally read, to see what new knowledge you can pick up. Learning about disciplines that are different from your own can introduce you to new ways of thinking and behaving.

Personal Art Projects

Personal art projects can fuel your creativity. But finding those projects is not always easy. Doing a simple search online will provide you with an array of activities that might catch your eye.

Also, activities such as 'Painting by Numbers' or adult colouring books are hugely popular.

Voila!

You now have your 7 Day 'Me Time' Plan to structure your week and balance your life! If you're committed to following the strategies within this guide, enjoy and have fun taking care of you!

By now, you must be excited to make this happen. And you've only just scratched the surface.

Here's what to do next:

As mentioned earlier in this guide, I use a known and proven 4-part method: 'The 4C's Blueprint™' to help women find a deeper understanding of themselves and to also achieve relationship success.

When you implement this method and combine the strategies within this guide, you'll be in the best position to achieve the same result.
